IN MEMORIAM.

Following is the memorial adopted by the Lincoln County Bar relative to the personal and professional character of Col. T. P. Hill, which was ordered, by the court, to be spread upon the record:

The death of Thomas Peyton Hill, which occurred at his home in Stanford Dec. 6, 1908, marks a notable event in the necrology of this bar. His character, gifts and professional attainments; his clear conception of elemental principles; the exceptional lucidity of his expositions of what the law is and what the law should be; his engaging personality and charm of conversation; his devotion, almost chivalrous, to the honor of his profession; his loyalty to cause and client—these are a part of the things which gave prominence to his long professional life, which attracted notice to his death, and which will serve to make the memory of him enduring.

Mr. Hill was born Aug. 30, 1826. On the paternal side he was of Catholic lineage. A remote ancestor was a member of the colony which, under the patronage of Lord Baltimore, settled Maryland. During the Revolutionary war some of the descendants of this ancestor followed the banner of John Eager Howard, of the Maryland line, and others have since achieved distinction in law, theology and literature.

On the maternal side, he was descended from the Peytons of Virginia, whose lives and character are interwoven with the history of that ancient Commonwealth.

Mr. Hill was prepared for the practice of law under the tutelage of Hon. John Kincaid, of Lincoln county, himself justly esteemed as one of the great lawyers of Kentucky who laid the foundations of her jurisprudence. The habits of thought of the teacher were strongly impressed upon the pupil, who proved himself capable of assimilating the lessons imparted. Upon procuring a license, Mr. Hill moved to Missouri to engage in the practice, but soon returned to Kentucky, located in Wayne county, where he was appointed county attorney in the year 1848. Thence he moved to Pulaski county, where he practiced with success until about 1851, when he returned to Lincoln county, where he lived continuously until his death. In 1865 he formed a partnership with J. W. Alcorn, which continued until 1887, when it was dissolved by mutual consent. Thereafter he entered into partnership with Hon. P. M. McRoberts, which was dissolved in 1901 by Mr. Hill's retirement, not from infirmity but only because he had reached that period of life when men who have earned a competency prefer to cease from active labor. Though declining professional employment, he was daily at the office of his late partner and habitually manifested a lively interest in the procedure of the courts. During the whole period of his retirement and until death had almost laid its hand upon him, his counsel was sought by and freely given to members of his profession.

One of the most noted traits of his character, and the one by which he will be most affectionately remembered by his juniors, was his sincere and unselfish interest in young men as they entered on the study of the law. It is likely true, that excepting the professors in Colleges of Law, no Kentucky lawyer ever taught as many young men. It is also likely true, that but few, if any, lawyers in Kentucky taught their pupils more accurately, assiduously or thoroughly than he. His knowledge of the common law was broad and deep and built upon its history. His understanding of the science of pleading, that touchstone of precision and clear thinking, was exact. The Jurisprudence of Equity he learned from the masters, and he was able to contribute to its symmetry and growth.

Because of his surpassing power as a public speaker, made all the more impressive by his musical, well modulated voice, the distinctness of his articulation, the richness of his imagery combined with a magnetism which thrilled an audience like an electric current, he will possibly be best remembered by the public as an orator. His brethren of the profession, however, long knew that his highest powers were displayed in unornate and sober logic. The fault of his mental character was that, sometimes, in the fervor of advocacy before a jury, his rich imagination caused him to momentarily neglect the prosaic syllogism of his argument. In discussion before the court, his reasoning was strong and substantial. His capacity for analysis was extraordinary. With a skill which evinced both strategic and tactical power, he was capable of separating a proposition into its elements, and then, as the exigency might demand, assail the separated parts or combine them for an impregnable defense.

After the manner of the best lawyers of the early period, he adhered tenaciously to the fundamentals of the common law. He was not given to searching modern adjudications for a sanction of its rules and was impatient with the lawyer, who, neglecting the ancient principles, first hastens to find a reported case which seems to fit the case under consideration.

To apply a principle to a fact; to differentiate between cases where the facts are superficially alike though substantially different; to invoke the application of a principle, fairly deducible from the facts of one case, to another case of many differing facts but which embraces one similar and governing fact, were among his favorite mental exercises.

He had no fondness for political life or public stations. He had decided and enlightened views on political questions, chiefly on those which involved an interpretation of the powers of government. Questions of mere expediency rarely elicited his interest.

In respect to those amenities and social relations which should ever obtain among the members of the bar and the court, he was facile princeps. Envy did not lurk in his bosom. Detraction did not pass his lips. Considerate of every one's right; lenient toward every one's fault; patient with every one's caprice, tender, merciful and forgiving, the light of more than a half century was turned upon his professional career without revealing a moral or social blot to mar the beauty of the edifice his genius and humanity built.

MATRIMONIAL.

John Hazlett, 23, and Miss Jennie Walls, 16, were made one last week.

Wm. H. Reynolds, 24, and Miss Georgia Cravens, 16, were married Thursday.

At the age of 90 years Juan Landeta, a Spanish multi-millionaire, married Dolores Uplina, 18 years old, in Mexico.

Theodore Harris and Miss Margaret Harmon, of Boyle, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents.

At Cincinnati last week Mr. Patrick W. Whipp, of this place, and Miss Mayme Tilford, of Liberty, surprised their many friends by marrying. Mr. Whipp, until recently lived at Liberty, but is now connected with the Stanford Drug Co. He is a most excellent gentleman and very popular with our people, while his bride is a lovely and accomplished young woman and is one of Liberty's most charming ladies. Their many friends here extend congratulations and wish for them all the joy that can come to a happily wedded pair.

Mr. William H. Reynolds and Miss Georgia, the pretty daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Cravens were quietly married at the bride's home, Thursday afternoon at 3 p. m., by Rev. W. S. Willis, of Hustonville. They were accompanied by Mr. James Cravens, Miss Mary Reynolds, Mr. Fred Cravens and Miss Lora Reynolds, brothers and sisters of the bride and bridegroom. Miss Cravens was gowned in a traveling suit of blue and her beauty never showed to better advantage while the groom is a clever and industrious young farmer of the West End. Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party drove to his home. Saturday night the Misses Reynolds will entertain in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds. A FRIEND.

ONIONS.—A very large portion of the lands contiguous to the Queen & Crescent Route and the St. Louis-Louisville lines well adapted to the producing of onions on a commercial scale. The onion is always in demand, is a good keeper when properly cured, and unlike many other products can be held by the grower until the market prices meet his views.

The requirements for onion growing are rich soil, (and every good farmer keeps his soil rich) good preparation of the soil before sowing, clean and shallow cultivation and proper curing. The varieties grown should be either white or yellow skin, because these bring better price on the general market than the red skin sorts. The time of planting depends upon the climate conditions. Growers in the middle north who can put their product on the market early in July will generally catch the high prices.

The Agricultural Department has issued a booklet, "How To Grow Onions" which will be mailed to farmers living along the St. Louis-Louisville Lines and Queen & Crescent Route on application to W. M. Hamberge, Agricultural Superintendent, Lexington, Ky.

Don't drug the Stomach, or stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That is wrong. It is the weak nerves that are crying out for help. Vitalize these weak inside controlling nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and see how quickly good health will come to you again. Test it and see! Sold by Penny's Drug Store.

In addition there were a number of old notes found, most of which were out of date. It is supposed the things were hidden during the Civil war and forgotten, or that their owner was slain in battle.

The Secret of Long Life.

A French scientist has discovered one secret of long life. His method deals with the blood. But long ago millions of Americans had proved Electric Bitters prolongs life and makes it worth living. It purifies, enriches and vitalizes the blood, rebuilds wasted nerve cells, imparts life and tone to the entire system. It is a godsend to weak, sick and debilitated people. "Kidney trouble had blighted my life for months," writes W. M. Sherman, of Cushing, Me., "but Electric Bitters cured me entirely." Only 50c. at Penny's Drug Store.

The Owensboro Messenger has this eulogy of President Patterson, which we heartily endorse. The grand old man has done a great work and is deserving of the praise and affection of the entire people of the State. The paper says: "After nearly 40 years of unremitting labor in building up the State College at Lexington, Prof. James K. Patterson is to be relieved of some of the details of this great work by others who are associated with him. Probably no man in Kentucky has done as much for the Commonwealth. The great institution of which he has been so long the supreme head is a monument to his genius and unforgiving zeal."

Senator Boveridge is absent from Congress, it is claimed, for the purpose of avoiding to report the Statehood bill. If this is true, the Indiana statesman is deserving of all and more of the censure that he is receiving.

MISS ELIZABETH ALLEN, of Millersburg, Ky., was a conspicuous figure at the beautifully appointed 4 o'clock tea given in her honor by Mrs. E. H. Derion, of Vinton place, Tuesday afternoon.

Gowned in yellow messaline silk trimmed with gold embroidered lace, and carrying a shower of Marechal Neil roses, Miss Allen never appeared better. The environments, too, were in harmony, for yellow jonquills combined with smilax and ferns adorned the pretty home, which was softly illuminated with yellow shaded lights. Mrs. Derion, who gracefully presented the callers, numbering about 75, to the honoree, wore a fetching gown of turquoise blue silk and lace. Mrs. W. C. Paul, in a white lace robe, and Mrs. Frank Jones, in red crepe de chine, assisted in entertaining.

In the diningroom the tea table, draped with cluny lace over yellow satin, and occupied in the center with a golden basket filled with yellow jonquills, was presided over by Mrs. W. H. Barker, gowned in old rose messaline. Punch was dispensed by Miss Kate Mitchell, wearing a gown of yellow silk, and Mrs. Albert Biggs, wearing pink crepe de chine. - Memphis, Tenn., News-Scimitar.

Miss Allen is a popular visitor at the home of Miss Sallie Taylor Woods, of this place.

J. F. Walton, official grader of the Burley Tobacco Society, stated at Lexington, that about 25,000,000 pounds of the pooled crop sold last Fall at Winchester to the American Tobacco Company have been delivered. The total pool sold aggregated between 60,000 and 65,000 hogsheads, and Mr. Walton estimates that all of this tobacco will be delivered and paid.

"Well, Jimmie," said the visitor, "I understand you have a new baby here."

"Yes," said Jimmie. "He got here last night."

"Whom does he look like, your father or your mother?" asked the visitor.

"We don't know yet," said Jimmie.

"He seems kind of undecided."

"They tell me he has your father's nose," said the visitor.

"Yes," said Jimmie. "He has pa's nose, ma's mouth and Aunt Sarah's ears, and between you and me I'm going to give him grandpa's teeth. He ain't got any of his own and grandpa's got two sets. What I'm afraid of is that if they don't give 'em to him he'll get mine, and I need 'em in my business."

Laymen's Missionary Movement.

Twenty-two years ago the Student Volunteer Movement came into being with the watchword, "The Evangelization of the World in this Generation." At that time the idea seemed to be visionary and impossible. The common notion was so vast was the undertaking that it would require several generations, if not centuries to do it. Some, however, believed that when Christ said, "Preach the gospel to every creature," He meant His people in every age to do it. In other words that it is the clear, urgent duty of the present generation of Christians to carry or send the message of Christ to the entire non-Christian world in our generation. So great has been the change of view since that time that practically all of the great missionary organizations of Christendom are now making their estimates on the new basis, which after all is the basis of the Apostolic church.

At the last convention of the Student Volunteer Movement at Nashville, in 1906, the seed-thought of the Laymen's Missionary Movement was planted by the Spirit in the mind of a young business man of the city of Washington. As he saw 3,000 students considering for several days their relation to the evangelization of the world, this thought came to him: If the laymen of North America could see the world as these students are seeing it, they would rise up in their strength and provide all the funds needed for the enterprise. The providential opportunity for testing this idea came a few months later. The 100th anniversary of the first organization in America for the evangelization of the world was held in November, in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, New York City. One stormy afternoon with 75 laymen present, a series of resolutions was adopted calling into existence the Laymen's Missionary Movement.

The movement stands for investigation, agitation and organization; the investigation by laymen of missionary conditions; the agitation by laymen of adequate missionary policy, and the organization of laymen to co-operate with the ministers and missionary boards in enlisting the whole church in its supreme work of saving the world. The movement is denominational and interdenominational, national and international. It has become a national movement in Canada, all the churches uniting. In the United States the Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists, Reformed and Episcopal churches are organizing their forces. Their interdenominational committee has sent out 50 prominent laymen throughout the world to study the conditions and the needs and report. They are returning from all lands and their reports will soon be published to the world, to the church.

One great good that has come already is the different denominations defining their distinctive missionary responsibility. The churches of the United States and Canada have assumed the responsibility for 600,000,000 of the 1,000 millions of the unevangelized people of the earth. The United Presbyterian church has assumed the responsibility for the evangelization of 15,000,000; Northern Presbyterian, 100,000,000; Southern Presbyterian, 25,000,000; Congregational, 75,000,000; Northern Baptist, 61,000,000; Northern Methodist, 150,000,000; Southern Methodist, 40,000,000; Reformed, 13,000,000; the churches of Canada, 40,000,000.

The First General Convention, of any church, was held at Birmingham, Ala., on Feb. 16-18, by the Southern Presbyterian church, they being the first to get thoroughly organized. About 1,000 laymen from every part of the church were present, together with hundreds of ministers, to plan for the accomplishment of the work of the church—evangelizing 25,000,000 souls. It was the greatest and most important meeting that has ever been held in the history of the church.

To show the spirit and purpose of that body of laymen I will quote two out of a number of resolutions adopted:

"In fear of God and in reliance upon Him for strength and wisdom to do His work, we pledge our lives, our talents and property for the evangelization of the world in this generation, and in pursuance of this purpose we promise to support the officers and courts of our church by our increased offerings, personal efforts and prayers, and to assist our pastors in their efforts to inform, inspire and lead their congregations that they may take their true place as a world force."

"We earnestly recommend the appointment in every congregation of a strong Missionary Committee, who will make it their chief work to promote missionary intelligence and to lead their congregations to its highest financial and spiritual efficiency as a factor in making Christ's kingdom universal."

The movement is spreading throughout England, Scotland, Germany and Australia. In June, 1910, there will be held in Edinburgh, Scotland, an Interdenominational and International Convention. In truth, the Christian business men mean to give the same energy and intelligence to the work of missions that they are now giving to their own private business affairs, and the evangelization of the world will be no longer a dream. J. L. Y.
